

-12-

ABSTRACT

A brake fluid reservoir for a motor vehicle, comprising at least one impervious and flexible wall (12) allowing its capacity to be adjusted to the volume of brake fluid it contains, so as to avoid placing the reservoir at a depression when the level of brake fluid drops, this flexible wall (12) forming, for example, a pouch containing brake fluid and comprising outlet means (16) initially closed by an impervious and puncturable membrane (32).